InfoMentis and Option Six Win The Silver Excellence In Learning Award

InfoMentis and Option Six were recognized during an Awards ceremony and reception held on Tuesday, October 18, 2005 in Long Beach, Calif., as part of the 2005 Training Fall Conference & Expo, held October 17-18.

This year, entries were submitted in three categories: Custom Content, Innovative Technology, and Outstanding Case Studies. In 2005 a total of 210 entries, representing 16 countries, were submitted. The entries were evaluated by independent judges with expertise in instructional design and learning technology from 47 countries around the world.

The Brandon Hall Excellence in Learning Awards are presented by Brandon Hall Research, one of the leading research and consulting firms in training and development. Now in its eleventh year, the Awards program showcases exceptional work in innovative learning.

"The winning entries this year show a great combination of creativity and practical results. The winners are excellent both in terms of innovation and impact on the business," said Brandon Hall, Ph.D., chairman of the Excellence in Learning Awards program. "These winners show us what the future of learning looks like."

"Our clients have demanding standards for the use of e-learning to improve and reinforce skills in a cost-effective manner, especially when the learner is in a remote location," said Steve Maul, Chief Learning Officer for InfoMentis. "Our partnership with Option Six allows us to deliver our proven content to clients across the globe with a high degree of interactivity and quality. We're very honored to be recognized by Brandon Hall through this award."

"This is our third Brandon Hall award in two years," said Bill West, President and Founder of Option Six, "Our difference has always been quality and client partnership, two attributes that are at the core of InfoMentis' philosophy. It is very gratifying that both our clients and the e-learning industry recognize the strength of our partnership."
